Union Index A1

Foreword

The BC Labour Directory is an annual publication of the Labour Policy and Program Development Branch of the Ministry of Labour which provides contact information for unions and collective bargaining organizations in the province.

Information for this publication is obtained directly from labour organizations in British Columbia. Every effort is made to obtain accurate and up-to-date information. The reliability of the information depends on the accuracy of the respondents.

In particular, statistics are gathered from organizations regarding union membership. These should be used with caution as many are estimates and data are not gathered by all organizations at the same time of the year. In some cases figures were not provided and data from the previous edition of the BC Labour Directory was used. Many organizations do not keep separate statistics for the number of women members.

Particular attention is drawn to the union index at the end of the publication. Since some unions have locals with distinct and different names, and some unions are known by short names or acronyms, this index is included to serve as a finding guide.

We wish to thank all those who co-operated during the gathering of the information that went into the preparation of the BC Labour Directory. In the event that errors or omissions are discovered, it would be appreciated if they were brought to our attention.

UNION MEMBERSHIP SUMMARY - 2000

In 2000, trade union membership in British Columbia as reported to the Ministry of Labour dropped marginally to 590,380 members. This total represented a slight 0.3% decrease from 1999. The overall proportion of the provincial work force belonging to unions was estimated at 30.4%. Although the overall ratio of union membership to total employment has been stable for the past few years, it is still lower than the average ratio between 1950 and 1990. The unionized portion of the work force since 1986 has fallen to the levels of the early 1940's. This is mainly a result of the slow growth in the work force in the highly organized primary and manufacturing industries in the province coupled with rapid expansion in the less traditionally unionized service sector of the economy.

Please note the important changes to methodology that have been introduced within Table 1 resulting from changes in statistical information produced by Statistics Canada. A change in methodology is now being used to calculate the proportion of the workforce that is unionized.

There were relatively few trade unions that underwent organizational or structural changes during 2000. The changes in the 2000 directory include several unions that merged or became affiliated with other unions:

Changes

- BC Transit locals of the Independent Canadian Transit Union are now part of the National Automobile, Aerospace, Transportation and General Workers Union of Canada (CAW) Locals 111 and 2200.
- The International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is now known as the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.
- The Penticton Construction and Aggregate Association is now part of Local 68 of the Christian Labour Association of Canada

Deleted from the Directory

- The BC Deep Sea Fisherman's Union has not responded to the survey for several years.
- The General Workers' Union of Canada did not respond.
- The Grain Services Union no longer has members in British Columbia.
- Rail Canada Traffic Controllers, an affiliate of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, no longer has members in British Columbia.
- Retail Wholesale Canada, Canadian Service Sector Division of the United Steelworkers of America voted to leave the United Steelworkers of America and members are no longer unionized.

Twenty-five trade unions in the province had a membership in excess of 5,000 in 2000 - these are listed in Table 2. Few significant changes were experienced by the major trade unions with respect to their membership. However, the United Food & Commercial Workers' International Union and the Communications, Energy and Paperworkers Union of Canada reported the highest membership increases with changes of 16.7% and 24.8%, respectively, reported from the previous years figures.

The BC Labour Directory no longer contains tables reflecting gender breakdown. Many unions do not collect membership statistics by gender and, as a result, the ministry is no longer confident that those tables provide an accurate reflection of true female membership in BC. When numbers of women members have been provided by unions, they appear in the directory listing.

Important Change to Table 1

Beginning with the 2000 BC Labour Directory, we are changing certain statistics used to create Table 1 due to two changes in the statistics published by Statistics Canada. These statistical changes have the effect of revising downward the estimated percentage of the workforce that is unionized. For example, under the new approach, the 1999 estimate is revised to 31.1% compared to the 36.2% figure published in the 1999 BC Labour Directory. Because of this impact on the estimated percentage of unionized workers, the ministry wants to ensure that our readers fully understand the following two changes made by Statistics Canada and their impact on Table 1.

1. "Paid Workers" Replaced by "Total Employment":

   Statistics Canada has eliminated its figures on "paid workers" in the province and replaced these with figures on the "total employment" in the province. The old "paid workers" figures included anyone who was an employee as well as self-employed individuals who did not employ any employees. The new "total employment" figures include separate figures on the number of employees and the number of self-employed individuals. However, they do not distinguish between self-employed individuals who do and do not employ other employees.

   The ministry feels that of the two alternatives now available, it is more appropriate to use the "total employment" figure that includes all self-employed individuals because this is more consistent with the union membership data collected by the ministry. Many BC workers in the forest, film, construction and other sectors are union members even though their labour market status according to Statistics Canada methodology is self-employed.

2. Revised Population Figures:

   Statistics Canada has also recently revised upwards all of its historical data series based on updated population figures from the latest Census of Canada. This has resulted in changes in the previously published official estimates of "paid workers" and "total employment" and has required the ministry to revise our historical series previously published in Table 1, rather than simply changing approaches from this point forward.

These two changes together have the effect of increasing the estimated size of the BC workforce. When the higher estimated workforce is compared to the number of union members, it has the result of impacting downward the estimated portion of the workforce that is unionized. The following table summarizes the impact of these statistical changes.

Summary Table: Percent of Workforce Unionized

	Revised "Total Employment" Series (new approach)	Previously Published "Paid-Workers" Series (old approach)
1991	32.9%	36.4%
1992	32.4%	36.3%
